ABSTRACT

Brief annotations accompany the 104 entries in this bibliography which emphasizes sources for ethnological research about Native peoples of Canada dating from 1913 to 1985. Materials reflecting concerns of social anthropology and historical approaches to the study of Native peoples are also included, but linguistics and archaeology are covered only where they are treated in works of greater scope. All entries are available through the McGill University Libraries, and a cover sheet explains the locations of the University's holdings. The bibliography is organized by reference type in nine sections: handbooks (11 entries), directories (5), maps and atlases (3), biography (4), current bibliography and periodical indexes (6), retrospective bibliography (62), manuscripts and archives (6), theses (4), and periodical lists (3). The section for retrospective bibliography is subdivided into catalogues of major library collections, general and regional works, and special subjects including arts/literature/folklore, education, government relations and law, medical and physical anthropology, and women. Native Peoples of Canada:

A Guide to Reference Sources

This is a revised edition of an earlier guide entitled Indians and Eskimos of Canada. Although an emphasis on sources for ethnological research remains, materials reflecting concerns of social anthropology and historical approaches to the study of Native peoples have been included. Linguistics and archaeology are covered only where they are treated in works of greater scope.

Other student guides which may provide useful complementary sources of information include:

Anthropology
Archaeology
Canadian History
Folklore
Geography
Linguistics
Polar Regions
Sociology

Although there are no computer databases dealing specifically with anthropology, databases for other disciplines can be useful for particular topics in Native studies: Sociological Abstracts, America: History and Life, Social Sci Search (Social Science Citation Index), and ERIC, for example. Enquiries about online searching should be made at the Reference Desk, McLennan Library.

Government Documents

The Government Documents Department contains many publications relevant to Native research in Canada, in addition to those mentioned in this guide. As this material does not usually appear in the McGill Union Catalogues, readers are directed to the Government Documents Department for assistance in locating such material.

Northern Studies Collection

This collection, located on the 6th floor of the Physical Science and Engineering Library, specializes in materials on regions north of the 60th latitude, particularly Quebec and Labrador. Social, physical, and life sciences are represented in the collection. Locations and holdings for items mentioned in this guide may be found in the Northern Studies Catalogue at PSEL; additional sources may be found by consulting the classified section of that catalogue.

Map Collections

The University Map Collection, housed in Burnside Hall, contains thematic maps and atlases which may be of use. Consult the librarian there for assistance in locating items mentioned in this guide and related materials.

An historical collection of maps may be found in the Rare Book Department's Map Collection. A reference librarian should be consulted for information about these maps.

All locations for titles cited in this guide have not been indicated. For additional locations, consult the catalogues.

If you have any difficulty using this guide or the sources listed in it, please do not hesitate to ask a reference librarian for assistance.

This bibliography was revised by Meredith Giffin, Reference Department McLennan Library, McGill University.
